

“I am going to get the chairs and my new book and magazines. I will not ride in a balloon or on a boat. I will sit in my chair and look at my book and magazines,” said Father.

Red said, “Father and Mother, you will take a little long. Candy, Happy, and I will go on and see you there.”

“We will see you at the balloon rides,” said Mother.

Candy said, “Look Red, the balloon rides.”

“We will telephone Mother and Father. Is there a telephone?” Candy said to the man by the balloon rides.

“There is not a telephone, but I have a pencil and paper. You can put the paper there, and they will see it when they come,” said the man by the balloon rides.

Red put up the paper. The paper said, “We are on a balloon ride. Red, Candy, and Happy.”
